1975 Porsche 911 Targa - LHD, Classic Project

1975 Porsche 911 Targa with left-hand drive, imported from California in 2020 and registered in the UK. The car is powered by an air-cooled 2.7-litre flat-six engine (1977 MY, non-matching numbers) paired with a Porsche 915 manual gearbox. Power output is estimated at around 150 hp (US specification).

The car starts and runs, but shows minor oil leaks from the engine and gearbox output shaft seals. The fuel system has been refurbished, including a new fuel tank, pump, injectors and fuel lines. The braking system has also been refreshed with new flexible hoses and fresh fluid. The suspension would benefit from a refresh.

The body remains largely original and has been resprayed at some point in the past (original colour reported as silver). There are small, localised rust spots, notably under the bonnet seal area and near the battery, with no known structural corrosion. The chromed wheels show flaking, and the tyres will need replacement due to age.

The interior features original black leather with age-related wear: damaged driver's seat, cracked rear dashboard, and general patina throughout. The Targa roof was recovered in 2020. Most switches are reported to work, although the dashboard lights remain permanently illuminated. An air-conditioning system is present but currently removed.

An honest Porsche 911 Targa project, ideal for an enthusiast seeking an authentic classic with strong restoration potential or a usable classic drive
